there is a particular quiet that comes from writing by hand. the pen moves slowly enough for a thought to change shape, and the page keeps every correction. a sentence begins one way and ends another, with the evidence still visible in the ink.

hellooo